President's Report

STOP!

On nearly every corner in Brookdale there is a STOP sign. We see them every day. In fact, STOP signs are so omnipresent, it's hard to even think about them. But as our children and neighbors return to school, there is probably no better time to take a minute to think about STOP signs.

Perhaps I am a bit more sensitive than most to the issue of STOP signs because I live on a corner with a STOP sign firmly anchored into my front lawn.

Perhaps I am a bit more sensitive about whether people actually STOP at the STOP sign nearest to me because my daughter likes to play in the front yard.

Or perhaps, our proximity to busy River Road and Western Avenue, coupled with surrounding development and a good deal of cut-through traffic, makes us all a bit more sensitive to traffic safety issues in our little urban village.

I used to think that most of what I call "STOP sign coasters" were cut-through drivers on their way to "someplace else." But after spending a few mornings, afternoons and evenings standing on a corner, looking out my window or even waiting for the afternoon school bus returning with a load-full of Westbrook students, I have seen the "STOP sign coasters" and they are us.

Spend a few minutes yourself and you'll see what I mean. Sure there are plenty of "other folks" who blow through stop signs in Brookdale. But just wait a few minutes and you'll soon see that many of us are just as guilty of coasting through stop signs as the folks passing through.

It's easy to do. We all have meetings to make and carpools to drive. We are all busy. Indeed, since there is little traffic within Brookdale, it's easy to slow down just enough to crane your neck to the left as you make a right-hand turn without ever coming to a complete STOP.

But as another school year begins, and children return from sandy beaches to the streets of Brookdale, we should all STOP. Someone's life could depend on it.

We understand from Park & Planning that they are still planning to renovate Brookdale Park this fall, but unfortunately, their staff has been unable to give us a definitive timetable. When they do begin renovations, the playground equipment will be out of commission for a couple of weeks. As soon as we hear something definitive about the Park (or the curb replacements), we'll send out an e-mail to the Brookdale listserv (see http://comjet.com/mailman/listinfo/brookdale_comjet.com).

As we head into fall, there are a number of things going on in and around Brookdale. Marie Moylan is organizing a first-ever renovation tour of newly renovated homes in our community on Sunday, September 23rd. On Saturday, October 13th, Campbell Graeub is helping mount a community-wide yard sale. And on Sunday, October 28th, Brookdale will celebrate Halloween in Brookdale Park.

All of these activities help make our neighborhood a great place to live. Please let me know if you are interested in getting involved in any of these efforts or if you have any new traditions you would like to launch for Brookdale.

See you around the neighborhood!

Go Green: Respect the Earth and Recycle! by Joan Prince

Most Brookdale residents care about recycling, and it shows at the end of each week when lawn trimmings and blue bins are lined up on all the streets in our community. For those who don't think it matters or don't feel like doing it, give it a try. Know that it does make a difference and it doesn't take a lot of your time.

At Home

We all have soda and water bottles, milk jugs, cleaning product containers, and so forth to recycle, which are perfectly fine to place in your blue bin. Unfortunately, the Montgomery County Division of Solid Waste Services does not have a contractor at this time that can recycle plastics other than bottles with a neck. That means your yogurt containers, those plastic boxes for take-out salads, and plastic containers for roast chickens, among other such items, are not accepted for recycling right now. Jonathan Louis, an administrative aide at the Division of Solid Waste Services, said they are actively looking for a contractor that can process those plastics. To make sure it's okay to put in the bin, he said: check for the neck. I rinse mine out briefly and throw away the caps per instructions at www.MCRecycles.org.

The same applies to glass jars. Rinse them out and throw away the lids. Cans are great to recycle; you can also rinse but don't bother crushing them. Aluminum foil sheets are acceptable as well; I rinse mine off and throw them in the bin. The county doesn't want plastic bags in the recycling bins; so if you want to keep your paper products together, place them in a paper bag.

As most of you know, yard trimmings should be placed in big brown paper bags found in grocery and hardware stores or in your own reusable container. Leafgro, which is sold up the road at American Plant and Food, is actually a wonderful example of recycling: it's a product made from the lawn trimmings of county residents by the Maryland Environmental Service.

(For more information check: <http://www.menv.com/leafgro.shtml>) It's cheaper since it's local, and it involves less fuel and manpower since it's not coming from several states away. Buying local when you can is a good way to be green (e.g., better to buy local apples than those from Washington State), so buying Leafgro is a good way to keep it local.

If you have other old things to dispose of, Montgomery County may be able to recycle them. For example, old washers, dryers, refrigerators, stoves, humidifiers, swing sets, aluminum lawn chairs, shower stalls, disassembled metal sheds (whew!), or almost anything else like that you can think of, can be picked up by the county at your place (call 240-777-6410 to arrange a pick-up).

At the Transfer Station

You can also drop other things by the county transfer station (16101 Frederick Road, Derwood, MD 20855; 301-840-2370). It's near the Shady Grove Home Depot and the Vehicle Emissions Inspection Center. So if you are going out that way, take some things to drop off at the center. You'll be amazed at how there is a place for everything: old tires; old clothes, including drapes, towels, shoes, handbags, and belts; computers; and construction material, including doors, drywall, carpeting, cabinets, toilets, bathtubs, and sinks.

Bikes are accepted at the transfer station. Those that can be cleaned and repaired go to Bikes for the World and are then distributed to those in need in this country and in developing countries (<http://www.bikesfortheworld.org/>).

Hazardous materials are also accepted, such as car batteries, fluorescent light bulbs, wall heaters, mercury thermometers, oil, and paints. Cell phones are also collected; however, Mark Leslie, a supervisor at the Frederick Road site, suggested if they still work, they may be donated to a senior center where someone can use them to call 911 for an emergency. If they don't work, the batteries are removed and disposed of safely. Leslie also said books are now collected. Those books in good condition are sorted and those that aren't are recycled. Nonprofit groups collect those in good shape so they can make their way to people who can use them.

Paint can also be dropped off, and there are often remainder paints that residents can come and take. The same is true with mulch. Residents can get mulch for free, but you must pick it up and have a container to transport it in.

The late summer day I stopped by was bustling with county residents dropping off everything from old lawnmowers and exercise equipment to propane tanks and old air conditioning units. The container for textiles was almost full. People of all ages were sorting their plastics and papers in the huge bins. It's refreshing to see so many Montgomery County residents going green.

We here in Brookdale can pitch in and go green for the sake of the planet, our home. For more information, check out www.MCRecycles.org!

KUDOS to alert neighbors by Campbell Graeub

Many thanks are extended to Mikel Moore and Maureen McRaith for notifying the Park authorities about the dangers of a dead tree located on Dalton Road, exactly where the Westbrook School bus stops. The dead tree was unquestionably a potential hazard for the many children and parents who gather there daily. The two alert neighbors, who spotted this danger and acted by calling the Park Department, deserve our thanks and praise. This is precisely the kind of neighborly interest that all of us should learn from -- to stay alert and take action. It should not go without saying that the Park employees acted promptly and are to be commended.

Where a hazard can be demonstrated, Park people will respond quickly, in this case, two days. In the end, the arborist determined that two trees, a sycamore and a tulip, had to be removed.

The Brookdale Fourth of July Parade by Laura Jeliaskov

On a pleasant Wednesday, in the month of July, there was a parade in the neighborhood of Brookdale. What was the parade for? Why, the Fourth of July, of course! It happens every year. Montgomery County Fire and Rescue sends out about five firemen and a fire truck to Brookdale and they lead a parade of people in a circle around the neighborhood. Everyone is so excited! The radio that someone is carrying around is blasting music, the fire truck has its sirens whirring --- in other words, it is so loud it waking up late sleepers. They stumble out their front doors in pajamas looking groggy to see what all the commotion is about.

It turns out the Independence Day celebration in Brookdale is not so easy to arrange. Steve Heyman and his daughter, Madeline, were on Dalton Road, across from the playground, early, setting up all the refreshments for the party that follows the parade. There were lots of yummy foods that people had brought and tons of drinks. Steve and Madeline have been coming to this Brookdale event for about five years; they agreed that their favorite part was the parade. Nick Garner, one of the firefighters who came to lead the parade, said that it was his first time doing so. He enjoyed it a lot even the challenging task of trying to keep the smaller children away from the front of the fire truck during the parade. Ana Maria Delgado has been coming to the Brookdale Fourth of July celebration for six years since its initiation. This year, Gerald and Anne Geiger attended the event, as they have Brookdale events for the past 36 years! Gerald is a veteran of World War II and Anne was a social studies teacher for over 30 years. "Our favorite part of the party is the wonderful people with whom we can talk on this wonderful day in this great weather," they said. Also at the party were millions of kids. Matt Molot, who is almost 4 1/2, and Erica Molot, who is 2, both enjoyed the party very much. Matt's favorite part was the candy that was handed out during the parade. Erica loved the fire truck. It was indeed a great day for a party. The 2007 Brookdale Fourth of July celebration was truly amazing.

Laura, 11, is a 6th grader at Westland Middle School.

School Kid Census by Gwen Lewis

How many children are there in Brookdale? That is the question I've been asking myself. Having borrowed three public school directories (with difficulty) in August, I established that last year there were 117 Brookdale kids enrolled in the three local public schools, with 70 at Westbrook Elementary, 25 at Westland Middle, and 22 at B-CC. Undoubtedly, I missed a few attending other public and private schools. Here is the breakdown by grade last year.

Grade	# in 2006-7
K	10
1	15
3	20

What's your guess as to the additional private/other public school enrollments? How many pre-K children are there? More or less than the K-3 crowd?

Since Brookdale has 366 houses now, that makes an average of less than 30 percent of the homes having a school-aged child. And, of course, where there is one, there may be more. About 14 years ago Brookdale homes started to open up to new ownership. This means that more younger families have had the opportunity to move in over time. Hence, we have somewhat larger cohorts of children at the younger ages.

A Pumpkin Grows in Brookdale by Campbell Graeub

In the front yard at 5300 Sherrill Avenue a pumpkin has been growing to world-class size. This spring Madeline Heyman planted two seeds in a sunny spot near the curb. Every week if not daily, checks were made on the growth of the plant. Since the fruit set, through watering, gently coddling, and loving care, the pumpkin has grown quickly. If it reaches full maturity, it is guaranteed to be the feature attraction at the Brookdale Halloween party. Let's hope it gets to that stage, because neighborhood squires are already licking their chops to get to the seeds.

While the Sherrill Ave experiment might be a fluke, there are several victory gardens in Brookdale. From all accounts, neighbors report the biggest difficulty of having a vegetable garden is finding a sunny spot.

Perhaps the most successful vegetable plot is on Cortland at the corner of Andover, where tomatoes, Swiss chard, lettuce, spinach, squash and many other vegetables are grown annually.

At the risk of missing some, here is a sample of where other vegetables are grown. 5110 Westport: string beans; 4705 Merivale: lettuce and beans; 5202 Westport Road: tomatoes and cucumbers; 5211 Andover: tomatoes; 5310 Baltimore: tomatoes and squash. With increased interest in buying vegetables grown near home, and not those shipped from all over the world, there is a good chance of rekindling in Brookdale the victory gardens so common during World War II.

BROOKDALE HOUSE RENOVATION TOUR - September 23 -- Marie Moylan

Ever wondered how the renovation down the street from you turned out? There have been many interesting renovations in Brookdale over the past two or three years. Most of us are very curious to know what neighbors have done and how their ideas took shape (especially on some of the common house models), what they learned, who the good contractors are, etc.

So the Brookdale Citizens Association is holding a PROGRESSIVE RENO TOUR of several houses whose owners will share their renovation experience with interested neighbors. The tour is planned for Sunday, September 23, at 2p.m. More detailed information will be posted on the listserv before the date.

Those interested in participating are invited to sign up at 4503 Dalton Road between 2 and 2:30 on Sunday, September 23. All Brookdale residents welcome.

All are invited to come, in costume if possible. There will be children's games. Bring a picnic lunch if you like. Desserts and Halloween treats will be provided.

Reminder of Neighborly Behavior

A neighbor plea came in: "Would you ask people to please not park on the front lawns? It does not look good for the neighborhood."

Not only does parking on the lawn look bad and inconsistent with the image most of us want for our community, but -- if it leads to ruts in the yard -- such parking is against County Code. Now that we have parking permits available in Brookdale, there is no excuse for regular parking on the lawn.
